Dashboards for leadership to view the status across the locations

Employee Health Status Recording

With offices reopening their regular operations, HR teams will have to regularly communicate with the employees regarding their well-being, preparedness to return to work, and change in workplace policies among others. SummitAI Safe Workplace Enabler Suite allows HR leaders to design surveys and check employees' preparedness and willingness to return to workplace. It also helps draw insights from the survey results helping employers take appropriate decision and action.

Employee Health Screening

The SummitAI Safe Workplace Enabler Suite facilitates recording of the screening results. This helps decide whether to allow or deny entry to the individuals returning to work. It also enables administrators to access a dashboard and track the return of employees into their facilities over time.

Automated Safety Management

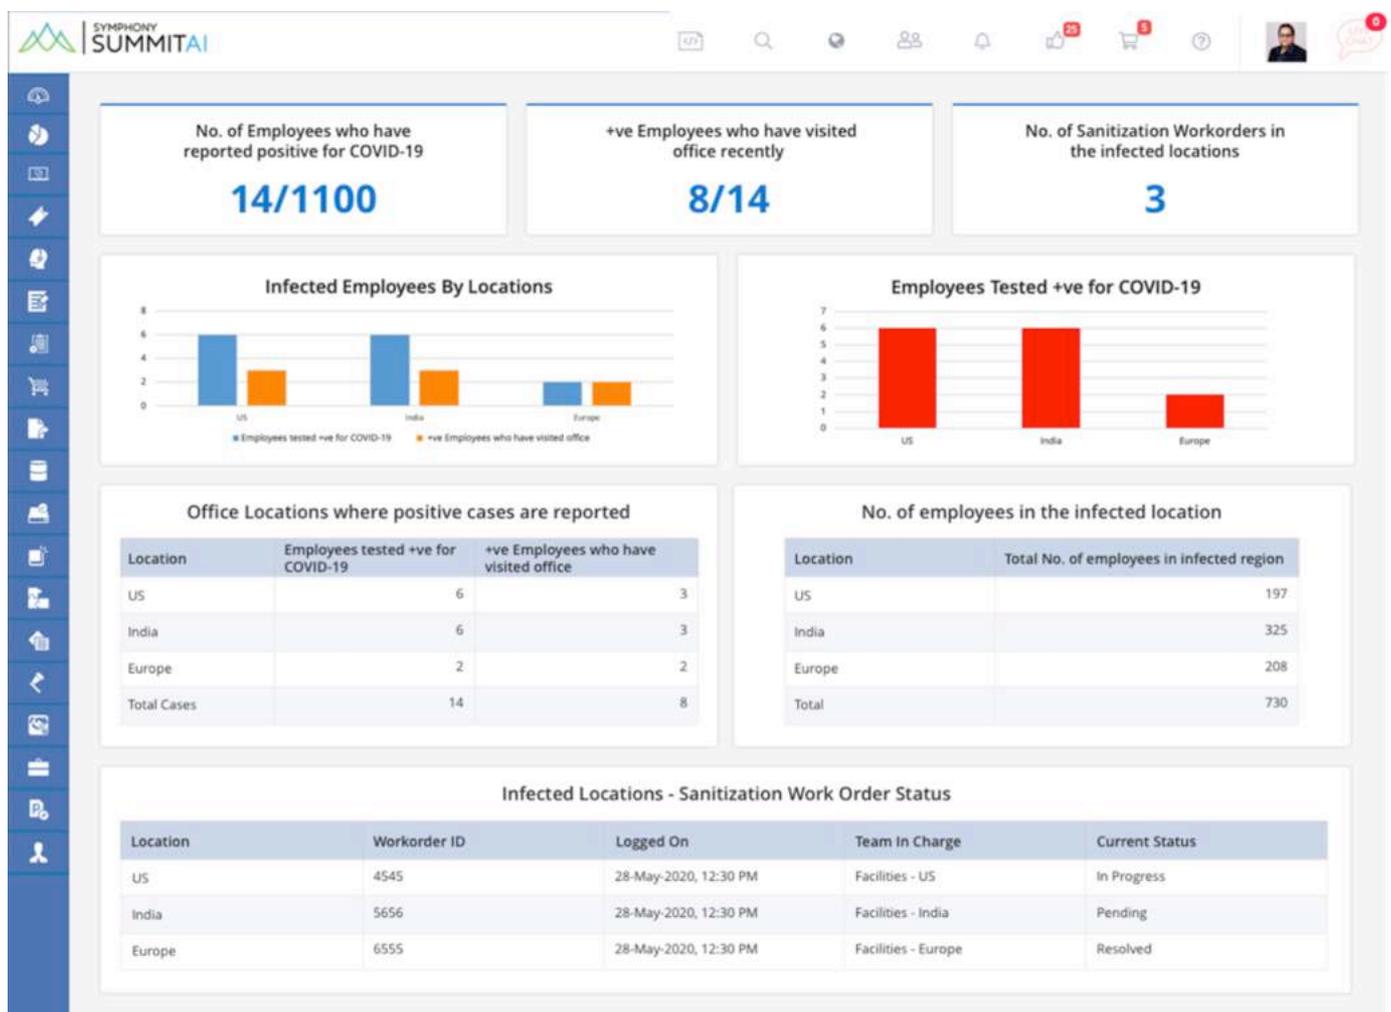

SummitAI Safe Workplace Enabler Suite provides workplace service managers the ability to quickly configure clean and socially distanced workspaces. It also enables them to assign employee shifts to the available places in accordance with the department leaders for a given time period.

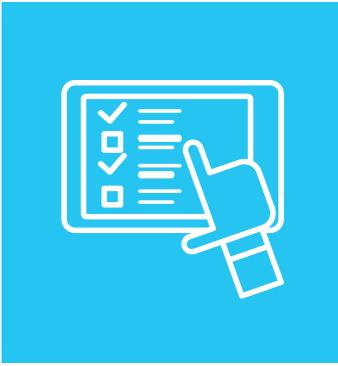

Automated Inventory Management

SummitAI Safe Workplace Enabler Suite provides a comprehensive view of the inventory by each facility, the aggregate scope of the entire workplace, and historical data on how equipment levels have changed over time. All this can be viewed in a single snapshot. It also allows current inventory levels to be updated daily for accurate and real-time inventory management.

Dashboards for Leadership

Leaders can gain access to single-view dashboards, wherein they can view the status across locations. This provides them insights and intelligence into the collected data with which they can make quick and accurate decisions regarding the health and safety of the employees and customers alike.

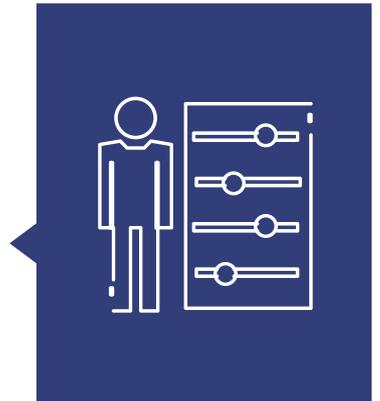

What's in it for the HR?

The SummitAI Safe Workplace Enabler Suite allows HR leaders to design surveys and check employees' preparedness and willingness to return to workplace. It also helps draw insights from the survey results helping leaders take appropriate decision and action. When companies screen employees coming to work, the suite records the result, and helps decide whether the individuals can enter the workplace or not. Administrators can access a dashboard and track the return of employees into their facilities over time.

What's in it for the Facilities/Admin?

The SummitAI Safe Workplace Enabler Suite provides workplace service managers the ability to quickly configure clean and socially distanced workspaces. The PPE (Personal Protective Equipment) application helps to manage and monitor the needs of the workplace to support the physical safety of your workforce. In a single snapshot, it provides a comprehensive view of inventory by each facility, an aggregate scope of the entire workplace, and historical data on how equipment levels have changed over time. Current inventory levels can be updated daily for accurate and real-time inventory management.

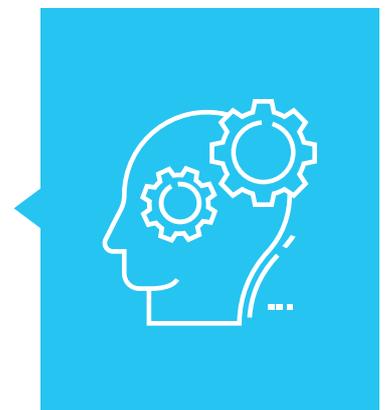

What's in it for the leadership team?

The leaders gain access to a single-view dashboard through which they gain insights and intelligence to make quick and accurate decision regarding the health and safety of the employees and customers alike.

What's in it for the CIO?

Since the beginning of lockdown, CIOs and CTOs have been striving to provide extended support to the teams to meet client demands. They have had to make rapid changes to orchestrate the sudden switch to the remote working mode of the employees, accelerate digital transformation to serve customers better and strengthen the IT infrastructure of their organization. With the lockdown coming to an end, SummitAI's Safe Workplace Enabler Suite facilitates CIOs to be the technology enablers and help execute and accelerate digital transformation across multiple functions within the organization.

With a comprehensive view into the health and readiness data of employees, SummitAI Safe Workplace Enabler Suite allows organizations to understand the situation quickly and take appropriate steps. As you return to the new normal, leverage SummitAI's Enabler suite to ensure a safer and productive environment for your employees.
